ZEPPELIN BEGINS REGULAR AIR SERVICE HARMON INDORSED FOR PRESIDENT

No Report On Bribery Case

Grand Jury Again Adjourns And No Results Now Expected

The Territorial Grand Jury again adjourned this morning without rendering a report on the charges of attempted bribery that were made by Supervisor Aylett against William Crawford.

It was believed certain that the Grand Jury would report on the case this morning and their failure to do so is a great surprise among the officials.

The failure of the Grand Jury to act is something of a mystery and has been taken by many to mean that the bribery charges have proven to be groundless and that nothing will come of the Grand Jury investigation.

The alleged attempted bribery received further attention this morning and Supervisor Daniel Logan was called before the inquirers.

The next session will be held Wednesday.

ZEPPELIN STARTS REGULAR PASSENGER AIRSHIP SERVICE

DUSSELDORF, June 22.—Count Zeppelin today carried twenty passengers from here to Friedrichshafen, in a monster, luxuriously-fitted dirigible airship, making the trip in nine hours.

This is the beginning of a regular airship passenger service to be established between these two points.

Count Zeppelin has had the assistance of the German Government in his wonderful undertaking. Plans are perfected for several more airships of greater capacity than the one used today in the initial passenger service.

EXODUS OF RUSSIANS ON WILHELMINA

Seventy-five Of The Czar's Subjects Recruited As Mainland Laborers

Seventy-five Russians, mostly men, from among the big lot of Russians who arrived at Honolulu the middle part of last October. Other recruits come from those Russian laborers who arrived here during November, May and the present month. It is said that several Russians who came here by the Nippon Maru and the Siberia refused plantation employment and they also joined the exodus.

The Russians had but little to say this morning. About all that could be gained from them was that they intended to get work on the coast perhaps in the mines, lumber mills or on the trans-continental railroads. They believed that much more lucrative employment was offered on the mainland than could possibly be had in Hawaii. The majority of those who left are mechanics and artisans and they claim to have had but little experience as agriculturists.

The fact that these immigrants are coming to the Territory of Hawaii 1913 per head to land in Honolulu is causing the officials to momentarily sit up and take notice. The labor agent on the coast continues to reap a harvest while the Russian gets a cheap passage to the states.

YACHT HAWAII ARRIVES SAFELY

Capt. Wilder Cables Friends—S. S. Nevadan Passed Yacht At Sea—22 Day Voyage

This morning at 7 o'clock several cables were received by Honolulu people and they all stated that the yacht Hawaii had reached San Pedro safely after a trip that would have been a 22-day one at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Captain Wilder has taken his yacht through in great style, and the voyage has been completed in fairly fast time. It was expected that as the Hawaiian representative approached the Coast, the winds might prove light. According to the meager cables received, the wind was contrary most of the way, and at least one gale was encountered.

H. A. Wilder got a message from his brother this morning, and it was as follows: "Arrived, all well, calm and contrary winds." Another cable was to Mr. Vetterson, and it stated that the yacht had arrived and had met with one stiff blow.

The Hawaii will have seventeen days in which to get ready for the trans-Pacific race, and in that time she will be cleaned and refitted with racing sails. Everything that can be done to prepare the yacht for the long race will be done, and the Hawaii should be in the best of condition when she starts out in company with the other six yachts.

Captain Anderson of the A.H. steamer Nevada, which arrived in port this morning, reports that on June 16 he passed a two-masted schooner, painted white. The vessel was about eight miles to the northward of the Nevada, on the port tack, on the wind, sailing about ENE. The schooner set no signals to be reported, and Captain Anderson took her to be the yacht Hawaii.

The Hawaii, at the time she was sighted by the Nevada, was 550 miles from San Francisco, and about 725 from San Pedro. The yacht was traveling at the rate of about six knots an hour when met by the freighter.

FRANK HARVEY PASSES ON

Noted Politician Member Of Many Local Orders

Frank Reddington Kaluauoku Harvey, a member of the Senate of the Legislature of 1909, died unexpectedly this morning at 2 o'clock at the Queen's Hospital. He would have been 54 years old, had he lived, on September 12, this year.

The late Senator was a conspicuous figure in matters political. He was especially thought of by the native Hawaiians for his action which resulted in the release of a goodly number of lepers from the settlement. On account of this work, he was frequently mentioned as a probable candidate for Delegate to Congress.

YES, IT WAS MOVING DAY

Wilhelmina Sailed—Tears And Perspiration Mingled

Tears and perspiration mingled as the steamer Wilhelmina pulled away from the Matson wharf, packed and jammed with humanity, this morning.

It was one of the largest outpouring of the populace that has witnessed the sailing of a coast-bound liner in months. For an hour before the Matson liner cast off her lines and headed into the stream, the wharf in the vicinity of the gangway, was a seething mass of people, mostly flower-laden, some smiling and happy, others in tears or ready to break forth at the slightest provocation, while here and there appeared a happy soul.
